Based in Sydney, but truly a citizen of the world, Margaret launched ShineByThree.com when she was a mere 13. Its reputation as a knowing, visual feast just keeps growing. Is there something about the way she's facing the future that speaks to you?

Q&A with Margaret

What keeps you motivated in your career?

Working with vast talents helps me stay on my toes and allows me to continuously learn. You can always challenge yourself and push yourself to learn something new within your field.

What is your advice for young women hoping to become an entrepreneur?

We live in a world where anything is possible. Things are no longer formulaic—what you study in school does not end up being your career. Look at me, I'm in law school and I'm working in the fashion industry.

"Beauty is less and less about how a woman's face looks, but more about a vibe that is exuded."
